

Job Description

Clinical Assistant or Associate Professor in Small Animal Gastroenterology

Outreach

1. Serve as a phone consultant for the Gastrointestinal Laboratory at Texas A&M University for up to 16 weeks per calendar year
2. Present CE lectures to veterinary practitioners, both nationally and internationally

Scholarship

1. Develop and seek funding for original research in small animal and comparative gastroenterology
 - a. especially related to gastric disease
 - b. especially related to protozoal disease
2. Support research by other colleagues in the GI Lab and the Department of VSCS
3. Publish the results of original work in high quality refereed journals, and present research to peer groups
4. Engage in scholarship of integration and teaching (examples of these activities include writing book chapters or presenting continuing education seminars)
5. Participate in weekly GI Lab meetings remotely and in-person whenever possible

Teaching

1. Teach graduate students at various levels in the Gastrointestinal Laboratory concerning scientific methods
2. Teach graduate students at various levels in the Gastrointestinal Laboratory concerning grant writing and publication of research results
3. Participate in house officer training as it relates to small animal and comparative gastroenterology
4. Provide continuing education presentations for practitioners in Texas, and participate in other state, national, and specialty meetings

Patient Care

1. None

Committee Assignments and Administrative Duties

1. Participate in departmental, college, and university committees as assigned
2. Participate in committees of other professional associations as appropriate
3. Participate in administrative duties within the Gastrointestinal Laboratory

Other

1. Demonstrate strong evidence of active institutional citizenship and consistent collegiality
2. Complete other duties as assigned by the Director of the GI Lab and the Department Head of the Department of Veterinary Clinical Sciences