

Schubot Avian Health Director's Award

Deadline: 4/2/2021

The Schubot Avian Health Director's Award was established in 2019 in honor of Dr. Ian Tizard (Director from 1999-2017). The award recognized an undergrad, graduate, or veterinary student Schubot member who has demonstrated research excellence on topics related to the health, conservation, genetics, or related topics pertaining to wild, exotic, or pet birds, and/or has contributed to the mission and operations of the Schubot Center for Avian Health. Nominations are accepted annually each Spring via email submission to Schubot Director Dr. Sarah Hamer (shamer@cvm.tamu.edu). The award is given annually in April at the Spring Convocation Ceremony for the College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences. Self-nominations accepted.

Student nominated: _____

Program/year of training of student: _____

Nominator: _____

Date of nomination: _____

How many years has the student worked with the Schubot Center?

<1 2 3 4 5+

Please give the topic of the student's research:

Has the student published his/her avian research (including lead author and co-author)? Yes No

If yes, provide citation/s here:

Provide examples of how the student has helped to advance the Schubot mission (e.g., leading outreach events; etc)

Does the student attend Schubot meetings and Seminars (lunchtime research presentations)? Most Some Few

Has the student given a Schubot Seminar (lunchtime research presentation)? Yes No

Please provide any additional comments regarding the qualification of the nominee here:
